(ISBN 978-0-9933596-0-6)

Published by North Devon Archaeological Society in September 2015, the Heritage Handbook is an alphabetical guide to the archaeology and landscape history of Northern Devon from the Cornish border to Exmoor and from the Bristol Channel coast southwards towards Dartmoor. With topics ranging from Mesolithic occupation on the beach at Westward Ho! to the remnants of World War 2 training on Braunton Burrows by way of hillforts and harbours, farms and factories, the book is a handy reference work for the curious, whether out and about or sitting at home and browsing.

The handbook was mostly written by John Bradbeer and Terry Green with important contributions from other specialists in their fields. It runs to 186 pages and is fully illustrated in colour.

This is a delightful, painstakingly researched and excellently produced book.
